13 ARE KILLED AS RAIL FLIER HITS A TRUCK

Two Texas Families Are Virtually Wiped Out in Crossing Crash.

WITNESS SAYS AUTO DARTED ONTO TRACK

Tragedy Occurs Within 150 Yards of Home Where 8 Lived.

FATHER, NEAR HOUSE, SEES CHILDREN DIE

Fourteenth Member of Picnic Party, Critically Hurt, Is Carried to Dallas.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Thirteen persons were killed tonight when the Sunshine Special, crack train of the Texas & Pacific Railroad, struck a truck bearing home a picnic party, at a grade crossing leading to the Forney-Terrill Highway, twenty miles east of here. The accident virtually wiped out two families. All the victims were in the truck.

All victims were reported dead when removed from the wreckage. The train pulled ahead a short distance and stopped after the collision.

The dead: Mrs. Iva Badgett, Vera and Eva Badgett, twins, 22. Texas Badgett, 16. Emma Badgett, 19. Birdie Badgett, 9. Jessie Badgett, 7. Betty Joe Badgett, 3. Five others killed.

Three persons named McHenry, whose first names were not determined were killed also, besides two who are unidentified.

Mrs. Iva Badgett was identified as the mother of the seven others of the same name who were killed. J. T. Vawter, the engineer, and G. F. Martin, the conductor, both alive at Fort Worth.

Claude Chapman, of Mesquite, Tex., who said he witnessed the accident, declared the truck halted as though to wait for the train to pass, and then started suddenly just before the locomotive reached the crossing.

Two Die in Hospital.

One died in a Mesquite hospital and one in a hospital at Fort Worth, the fourteenth member of the party, a little girl, was rushed to Dallas and placed upon an operating table. The accident occurred within 150 yards of the home of eight of the persons killed, Mrs. Iva Badgett and her seven children. Badgett was drawing water from a well and turned just in time to see his family die.

The Sunshine Special, on route east, was halted within a short distance and then resumed its trip.

Four Die in New York State.

Cobleskill, N. Y., August 11 (A.P.).—Four persons were killed today at a railroad crossing in Barnville, north of here. They were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fox, Johnstown, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Edwards, Gloversville. Their automobile was struck by a Delaware & Hudson Railroad engine running light between Albany and Binghamton.

Physicians said Mr. and Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Edwards were badly mangled, and believe that death in each case was almost instantaneous.

Soviet Gives Students Special Army Training

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—In order to be prepared for all eventualities the Soviet government today decided to give special military training to all students of normal, special and high schools. They will be drilled by special instructors of military institutes and divisions of military schools.

Three Are Killed in Ammonia Blast

Several Others Suffer Hurts When Condensers in Plant System Explode.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Three men were killed this morning when the condenser of a high pressure ammonia tank, attached to the refrigerating system of the Phoenix Dairy, exploded. The blast rocked houses in the vicinity and escaping fumes hampered rescue workers for more than an hour.

The dead: Robert Williams, 35, cold storage man.

L. A. Robertson, 35, electrician. Chester Hilton, 30, chief engineer. Several firemen were overcome by the fumes. All were expected to recover.

The three men killed were repairing a leak in the ammonia line when the explosion occurred. A fourth man working nearby was hurled 20 feet by the explosion and seriously injured.

Post Reporter Finds Gallinger's Portals Are Easily Crashed

Kind-Hearted Policemen Make Way Easy for Investigator Intent Upon Learning Truth About Criticized Hospital; Feigned Amnesia Proves Open Sesame.

This is the second of a series of articles by Duncan Price, of The Post's reporter staff, who spent three nights and two days as a "patient" at Gallinger Hospital in order to ascertain the conditions existing there. His first story yesterday gave a statement of those conditions. In the following and subsequent stories he tells how he gained entrance to the hospital and gives a detailed narration of his experiences while there.—Editor's note.

By DUNCAN PRICE.

About 7 o'clock last Monday evening I left my room on Connecticut avenue northwest and started walking in the vicinity of the Third Precinct, looking for a policeman before whom I could feign amnesia. I walked around for considerable time before I found an officer. Finally, at Eighteenth and L streets, I saw a pleasant-looking officer standing on the corner. Forthwith I started simulating what I believed to be the symptoms of amnesia. I walked down the opposite side of Eighteenth, staggering along and looking about in a queer manner. The policeman watched me closely, but said and did nothing, so I shambed about half way down the block, and crossed the street. I came back to where the officer was standing and began looking around with stary eyes.

He looked at me and said:

"What are you looking for?"

Receiving no reply he repeated the question.

I mumbled, "Who am I? Where am I?"

He clasped my shoulder to prevent me from falling.

"Do you live in Washington?" he asked.

"I don't know. I can't remember anything," I said.

"You don't know a thing," he asked, and I said, "No."

"Well, my boy, I guess we had better take you to the hospital and let the doctors see what's the matter with you."

He led me over to the police call box, and he said, "Send the wagon."

While the patrol wagon was coming, he searched me for articles of identification but found none.

When the patrol arrived, he said to the officer accompanying it, "This young man doesn't know a thing. He can't remember his name or where he came from."

"That's a shame," the second officer said.

"He is a nice-looking, well-dressed lad. He isn't drunk or full of dope is he?"

"No," the first officer replied. "He seems to be a nice clean fellow, and he hasn't got a thing to identify him."

"I think you might as well take him directly to the hospital where he can be treated."

"Yes," the other officer replied. "I think so. We'll just drive by the precinct so I can get a paper, then go right to Gallinger."

Goah, that statement sounded good.

WORK OF REVISING CZECH "ATROCITIES" TARIFF NEARS END CHARGED AT GENEVA

Sugar, Hides, Leather and Shoe Rates to Be Fixed This Week.

League Told Carpathians Subjected by Prague to Brutal Treatment.

DEMOCRATS AWAIT BILL PACT CALLED VIOLATED

(Associated Press.)

Republicans of the Senate finance committee will begin today their last week's work of revising the House tariff bill, with the controversial sugar, hides, leather and shoe items the most important rates to be determined before the measure is turned over to the Democrats for their consideration. A week from tomorrow the bill, which already has taken seven months and four days of congressional labor and is expected to surpass the eight months and thirteen days utilized to formulate and pass the Fordney-McCumber tariff measure in 1922, will be ready for presentation to the Senate as far as rates are concerned.

On that day the special session of the Senate will reconvene, but under an agreement reached by party leaders three-day recesses will be taken until September 4 to permit the tariff framers to complete the rewriting of the bill's administrative features which embrace the disputed flexible tariff providing the President with authority to change customs duties. During these recesses the Democrats

Second Typhoid Victim Dies After Clarendon Luncheon

Mrs. Ethel Miller Newest Fatality Among Ten Who Were Made Ill by Eating Food Believed to Have Carried Germs.

Typhoid fever yesterday claimed a second life among some 30 women who on July 6 attended a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Ethel Miller, Woodstock street, Clarendon, Va., as a result of which ten persons were stricken with the disease.

Mrs. Ethel Miller, 22 years old, of Clarendon, died early yesterday morning at Georgetown Hospital, where she had been confined for several weeks following discovery that she had contracted the disease. Health authorities of Arlington County believe that a germ-carrier was on one of the food served at the luncheon, affecting the women who attended.

On August 3 Mrs. Martha Sawyer, of Clarendon, died of typhoid. She was one of the W. C. T. U. members who attended the luncheon at the Gregory home.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, Arlington County health officer, yesterday declared that typhoid cases in the county are confined to the luncheon guests, no other cases being reported.

CREW GROOMS ZEPPELIN FOR WORLD FLIGHT

Workers Polish Big Craft to Attain High Speed; Off Wednesday.

DR. ECKENER FETES HELPERS AT DINNER

Officers and Men of Ship Anxious to Girdle Globe; Refreshed by Sleep.

EAGER FOR SECOND LAP, CROSSING ASIA

Messes Reduced to Spartan Simplicity; Superfluous Weight Eliminated.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Sunday proved no day of rest for the Zeppelin workers, who are preparing the Graf Zeppelin for its second and most difficult stage in its round-the-world passenger flight.

However much in need of repose the officers and crew may have seemed on arrival Saturday, after completion of the second round-trip Atlantic crossing within a year, they all declared their long sleep yesterday afternoon and evening had put them in shape again and were eager to continue the flight at the earliest possible moment.

"If Dr. Hugo Eckener, the commander, allows us we would rather start Tuesday night than Wednesday," one officer stated. But of course Dr. Eckener has hitherto always been right when he delayed because something was not quite in order, and so if he decided the Graf Zeppelin will not be in 100 per cent shape by Tuesday night we simply will have to wait."

May Start Wednesday.

This officer intimated the start of the flight to Tokyo was most likely to occur at midnight on Wednesday. The officers of the giant dirigible fully realize the gravity of the task ahead of them. They therefore are eliminating everything superfluous to diminish the weight. The comfort of the messes of officers and crew has been reduced to Spartan simplicity.

They also have eliminated everything likely to cause friction and thus retard the progress of the airship. This care for detail has gone to the extent of revarnishing all propellers so that their surfaces may be perfectly smooth to afford a minimum of resistance to the air.

Extra Blau Gas Stored.

For fuel, the Graf Zeppelin will take a maximum supply of Blau gas and a minimum of benzine for three reasons, viz: The engines respond more readily to it; it weighs less, and the ratio of its effectiveness compared with benzine is 140 to 100.

The officers and crew of the dirigible, with their wives and families, were guests tonight at a party in the Zeppelin casino. Dr. Eckener, after entertaining them at dinner, warmly thanked them for what they had done in bringing the Graf safely back after two ocean crossings. He expressed confidence that the round-the-world flight will be completed without a hitch.

The officers and crew in turn took occasion to wish Dr. Eckener well during his sixty-second year, begun yesterday, and gave vent to their enthusiasm for their leader by breaking into lusty "hoche's."

College Women Get $1,000 for Peace Aid

Geneva, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A gift of $1,000 from the Carnegie endowment for promotion of peace in recognition of the work of the International Federation of University Women was announced today at the Triennial Congress here.

The congress is attended by many American delegates, as 29,000 of the 46,000 members of the federation live in the United States.

Scouts at Cathedral Following Jamboree

Liverpool, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Boy Scouts of all nations, who have just concluded a world jamboree at Arrow Park, attended a special service in the cathedral today. It was estimated that 100,000 persons lined the streets from the pier to the cathedral to watch the procession of contingents of Scouts in the varying national uniforms.

Indian Blankets Should Be Indian-Made, Ruling

(Associated Press.)

Indian blankets, the Federal Trade Commission believes, should be made by Indians if they are to be labeled as such. The commission announced yesterday that a corporation, the name of which was not made public, had agreed to cease "use of the words 'Indian Blanket' in its advertisements to represent the product sold by it, and from use of the word 'Indian' in any other way in connection with the sale of its blankets so as to imply that the product is in truth an Indian blanket."

FLAMES FATAL TO EMPLOYE IN GARAGE BLAST

Ottaway T. Davis Dies in Hospital After Alexandria Fire.

POLICE ARE BAFFLED BY CAUSE OF BLAZE

Victim Had Run Truck Into Building Just Before Flare-Up.

BURNED MAN BRAVE IN FACE OF INJURIES

Walks Unaided to Emergency Ward and Remains Conscious to the End.

Ottaway T. Davis, 36 years old, an employee of the Baker Motor Co. in Alexandria, received fatal burns in a fire resulting from a mysterious explosion at about 2 o'clock yesterday morning in the locked building of the automobile firm at 115 North Pitt street.

Davis, never losing consciousness, died about four hours later at the Alexandria Hospital, where attendants had been unable to give more than brief temporary relief for the severe wounds which practically covered his body.

Just before he succumbed Davis explained that he had driven into the garage in a truck and was alighting from the machine when a sheet of flame suddenly flared from the open door of a nearby boiler room. "I was just getting out of the truck when this fire shot out and my clothes caught on fire," Davis declared. "I tried to beat the flames out, but they kept on spreading on these greasy work overalls and in a few minutes the work was all over me. I tried to roll around on the floor and another it, but it didn't help any. That's all I know about it."

Victim Displays Iron Nerve.

Everett C. Gillum, a former employee of the garage who resides directly across the street, told police he heard a noise like an explosion at about 2 o'clock, but paid no particular attention. He said a few minutes later his wife called to him that the Baker building was afire, and that he rushed to the door, which he declared he found locked. Kicking in the glass, he entered and found Davis attempting in vain to beat out the fire which had enveloped him. The flame, Gillum asserted, was burning the man's flesh.

The fire department and others soon reached the scene and fanned out the man's flaming clothes and the blaze which had gained little headway in the interior of the structure. Walking unassisted to a bus operated by William Shelton, a mechanic of the Baker Co., Davis was taken to the hospital, where again he walked unaided to the emergency room and was given first aid. He then sought to go unassisted to an assigned bed but attendants picked him up and carried him.

An investigation immediately was started by Capt. W. W. Campbell and Sgt. Edgar Sims, of the Alexandria Police Department, and Fire Chief James M. Duncan, Jr. Upon technical information regarding explosions as advanced by chemists, the three advanced the theory that the machine from which Davis was alighting backfired, the flash apparently igniting with gasoline which had accumulated in the adjoining boiler room.

Unexplained Circumstances.

They were at a loss to understand, however, how any gasoline had accumulated in the boiler room, in which there had been no fire for eight months and in which the illuminating gas had been cut off for several months. They also were informed that the only gasoline tanks in the structure, which recently has been used only as a storage room for car washing, were empty.

Davis roomed at the Monticello Hotel, conducted by his employer, who was out of the city when the fire occurred. Davis is survived by a brother at his home in Chatham, Va. His divorced wife is a resident of Washington.

Damage to the structure and to the machine was slight.

Absent Sons to Salute At Hour of Funeral

Denver, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Three brothers, prevented by their duties from coming to Denver, will stand at salute at three different points in the United States Monday when funeral services for their mother are held here.

The mother, Mrs. Mary A. Marron, died at her home here Friday. The sons are Lieut. Raymond V. Marron, of the United States Coast Guard, commanding officer of the cutter Comanche; Lieut. Comdr. Adrian R. Marron, United States Navy, stationed at Washington; and Lieut. Cyril G. Marron, stationed at Fort Moultrie, S. C.

INTIMATE TALK FAILS TO BREAK IMPASSE AT REPARATIONS PARLEY

British Maintain Demand for Remolding of Young Plan.

VOTE MAY BE ASKED AS DISCUSSION ENDS

Cessation of Payments by Germany Probable on September 1.

MOVING CONFERENCE SITE IS SUGGESTED

MacDonald Backs Snowden Speech as French Papers Criticize "Insult."

The Hague, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The six principal delegates to the reparations conference had an hour and a half heart-to-heart talk here today, but the British impasse was not breached. Emerging from the conference room Arthur Henderson, British secretary for foreign affairs, put the situation this way: "The entente cordiale continues." Philip Snowden, his colleague, however, would not go that far.

The chancellor of the exchequer made it absolutely clear that his demands were maintained integrally. He will continue to defend them with less sharpness, perhaps, but with no less vigor, he said.

Under these circumstances Snowden's resolution to revise the Young plan will remain on the table tomorrow while a general discussion of the reparations situation goes on, but, according to the best information obtainable, the chief British delegate will demand a vote on that resolution the very minute the general discussion is finished. The attitude of the British is said to be so firm that the French and Italian delegates, who made tentative offers of concessions on both deliveries in kind and annuities are reported to have withdrawn them.

Payment Cessation Seen.

For the past two days the chief delegates have been mostly concerned with what will happen if the conference fails. The first eventually taken into consideration is the probability that Germany will cease paying reparations under the Dawes plan on September 1. There has been no formal notification of such intention but it has been made clear that the Reich will not continue to pay creditors more than the experts found the minute the general discussion is finished. land would be an accomplished fact within three months.

Officers of the various armies of occupation will be here tomorrow to begin study of the technical details incident to evacuation, while the committee of jurists will go to work on the question of whether a committee of control may properly be required by the French.

The possibility of creditors other than Great Britain accepting from Germany part of the annuities due them under the Young plan without agreement with the British has been considered with relation to evacuation of the Rhineland. If it is found possible to make a separate arrangement of that sort then the French might agree to take French troops out of German territory. The weakness of this proposal lies in the fact that it holds the guarantee of a unit front by Germany's creditors.

The general discussion of the Young plan will probably be concluded at tomorrow morning's session of the financial committee, after which may come the demand by Snowden for a vote on his resolution to appoint a committee to revise the plan.

MacDonald Backs Snowden Speech.

London, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has sent a telegram to Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden at the Hague conference on reparations endorsing the latter's speech of last Thursday and emphasizing that he has the support of the whole country. This telegram will be produced at the meeting of the financial committee tomorrow.

The Mail quotes the premier as saying: "In view of statements so widely spread on the continent that Mr. Snowden was bluffing, I want to make it perfectly clear that he is making that Great Britain has no come to the limit of bearing unfair burdens and that we are prepared to stand by him to the end."

Snowden has insisted that Great Britain can not accept the reduction in the Spa quota for division of reparations proposed in the Young plan and considers that this question must be settled before the conference can proceed to discussion of other details.

French Criticize More.

Paris, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The chorus of French criticism heaped upon the head of Philip Snowden by the French press was warmer today under the shock and sting of "the insult" which the British chancellor of the exchequer is held to have hurled upon the ever courteous French finance minister, Henri Chéron, at yesterday's session of the reparations conference.

Snowden's explanation, apology or withdrawal—whatever it may be—will go on and on, interests the French less at the moment than his actions and words of yesterday. French papers generally remind the chancellor that courtesy is the first condition of international relations and his attack on Chéron and his manner of making it as unjust, violent, insulting, discourteous and, as Journal des Débats remarks, "unbecomingly to any man who is well-bred or simply reasonable."

Tempo says: "Everybody has known for a week that Mr. Snowden lacks political maturity to such a point that he is not a reliable negotiator. Negotiations can be carried on with the same tone as arguments used in an election campaign."

Entente Cordiale Remains.

The paper adds, however, that the "entente cordiale" between Great Britain and France having "realized the ill will of David George, will in the same way resist the grudge of Snowden."

That the chancellor's conduct at the Hague should be generally approved by the British press still surprises the French, who in general hope the conference succeeds, but feel that if it does not Germany and England—not France—will be the greater losers because of its failure.

The specific words of Snowden which aroused greatest French antagonism were "grotesque" and "ridiculous," applied by him to Chéron's interpretation of the Balfour note. These were withdrawn by Snowden yesterday after the French member of the financial committee had explained to him that they were likely to be offensive when translated into French.

National Labor Law Approved in Mexico.

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The legislature of fourteen states have approved a proposal to alter the national constitution to permit enactment by the federal congress of a national labor law. The consent of only four more is necessary and is expected to be obtained before the end of the week.

Articles 73 and 123 of the constitution reserve the right to state governments to legislate in matters affecting labor in their territories and and it is these articles which would be changed.

HOOVER PARTY BACK TO CAPITAL TODAY

President Helps Construction of Dam to Sequester Trout in Rapidan.

PARTY BREAKS ROUTINE

Madison, Va., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The quiet of his usual week-end outing broken by the observance of his fifty-fifth birthday, President Hoover will return to the White House early tomorrow after three days of rest at his fishing camp in the mountains near here.

Although two executive heads—Secretary Hyde, of Agriculture, and Surgeon General Cummings, of the Public Health Service—were members of the presidential party, relaxation and not governmental business, has been the keynote of the week-end. To the President, his weekly holidays are means of breaking the strain of White House duties, and he avoids business as much as possible.

Hiking and horseback riding along the paths surrounding the mountain retreat are usual diversions for Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and their guests. The usual routine was upset this week, however, by the birthday dinner, in which the first lady and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, wife of the distinguished flier, were leaders, and a bit of engineering work in which the President led.

Only the men participated in the labor, which consisted of blocking the headwaters of the Rapidan River to provide pools in which trout may gather. Several of the men donned high rubber boots and waded into the stream after large stones and carried them to the dams, where they were set in place by the others.

The party will break camp early tomorrow morning. The President leaves his mountain retreat in time to arrive at his desk during the morning, and the early departure also permits the party to avoid driving in the midday heat.

Secretary and Mrs. Hyde with William Allen White, Kansas newspaper publisher and author, returned to Washington late today.

Six Burned to Death As Automobiles Crash.

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Six members of a party of Chinese returning here early today from a wedding in Stockton were burned to death when their automobile collided with another car, overturned and caught fire.

Two other Chinese were injured, one perhaps fatally.

Expensive Liquors Seized Off Coast.

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Fruitless search for the body of Lieut. P. P. Cardero Farias, Brazilian flier, who fell into Pensacola Bay yesterday during a training flight, was pressed today by tug and airplane. All of the searching units reported tonight that they found no trace of the body.

Lieut. Farias was taking a special training course here upon the request of his government.

Meanwhile the naval air base office said the arrival of an official from the Brazilian Embassy in Washington was expected at 5:30 a. m. tomorrow. It was indicated that the crash in his official report of the crash in his government and cooperate in the search for the body.

Lieut. Farias and her two children were taken to the air base today as special guests of the commandant. They will confer tomorrow with the Brazilian government official.

Examination of the training plane used by Farias on his hapless flight was ordered by the commandant's office today. From it, naval fliers said they hoped to determine the cause of the mysterious crash into the bay.

Cardero Farias had been here since July 7 and was nearing completion of an advanced flying course, which had been arranged between the Brazilian and American governments. The Brazilian was a qualified aviator in the Brazilian navy, but felt the need of advanced training, it was explained. The crash occurred while the ship was flying high along the shore line. It wavered suddenly, and then plunged straight into the bay. Apparently the flier stayed with his craft, hoping to right it, and jumped at the last moment. The plane was found in 38 feet of water, but the body was not in the cockpit.

Naval fliers said the search would be continued until the body was found.

Mother and Sons Are Cut by Robber.

Chair, Wielded by Child, Routs Intruder After a Fight.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Three persons were stabbed, one perhaps fatally here early today when they were attacked by a Negro intruder in their home. The injured are Mrs. M. Kimmerling and her two sons, Hyman, 15 and Charles, 17.

The Negro was routed by Gaston Kimmerling, 9-year-old son of Mrs. Kimmerling, who struck the assailant with a chair when his mother and brothers apparently were waging a losing fight.

The intruder escaped and tonight police had found no clue as to his identity. Police said they were undecided as to whether robbery was the only motive of the attack.

Mrs. Kimmerling was stabbed when she related efforts of the Negro to take a ring from one of her fingers. Hyman Kimmerling was stabbed five times and is believed by hospital attendants to be fatally wounded. The mother and other brother are expected to recover. Mrs. Kimmerling was stabbed twice and Clyde Kimmerling four times.

Girl Dies in Theater Of Mysterious Malady.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Mariana Fione, 14, uttered a piercing cry while in a theater tonight, slumped in her seat and was dead when attendants reached her side. Four other children in the theater had died under similar circumstances.

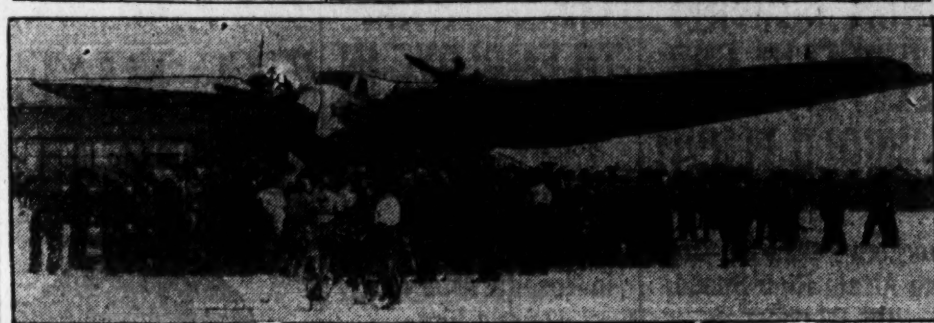

The child apparently had been in perfect health, and an autopsy will be held in an effort to determine what mysterious malady is afflicting the family.

Suicide Causes Blast Seriously Hurting Two

Chicago, August 11 (A.P.).—An explosion of gas, turned on by a woman to kill herself, wrecked her home, shattered windows in surrounding houses, and seriously injured her husband and her 7-year-old nephew, Otto Jaretz.

The woman who killed herself was Mrs. Emily Strahmer, 29. Strahmer said she was dependent as a result of a quarrel with him. The exact cause of the explosion was undetermined.

METEORIC DISPLAY PROMISED TONIGHT

Fisher, of Harvard, Declares Annual Shower in North Will Be Spectacular.

DEBRIS FROM PLANETS

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Between midnight and dawn tomorrow the earth will whirl into the midst of a shower of "The Tears of St. Lawrence," the brightest meteor display of the year, Dr. Willard J. Fisher, of the Harvard University observatory, said here today.

This shower, consisting presumably of the debris of comets and radiating from the constellation Perseus, will be visible about 10 months. It has been an annual visitant since ancient times.

Millions of fragments will fly into the earth's atmosphere at a greater speed than the earth travels, blaze a brief trail across the visible heavens and then disintegrate into dust and ash. Very rarely do meteors reach the surface of the earth. Dr. Fisher said, although the "larger" meteors could do great damage.

The only authenticated case of a person being struck by a meteor, was that of a Frenchman killed in Milan on September 4, 1811, he said. There have been some narrow escapes and fall a dispatch told of two men killed by a meteor at Knath, India.

The northeast sky from midnight to dawn is the theater of the perisid shower.

Bride Commits Suicide On Her 21st Birthday.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.S.).—In the early hours of the morning of her twenty-first birthday, Mrs. Emily Strahmer, a bride, waited in vain for her husband to return to her and patch up the quarrel for which he had left her.

Then in the quiet of the morning she wrote two notes, farewell birthday notes. The police found her dead with her head under a blanket and the gas fixtures turned on.

Jungle Flora's Chemistry Surprises U. S. Scientists

Field Explorers Send Back Report; Drugs That Trap Edible Fish Are Discovered; Party in Jungle Attacked by Vicious Ants and Vampire Bats.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Trees which produce sugar and latex plants which yield poisons for treating diseases, and poison which kills the fish in a body of water without spoiling their edibility are among the discoveries reported to the Field Museum today by Lievellyn Williams, leader of a botanical expedition to the Amazon.

"The pale de sugar, or 'sugar tree,'" Mr. Williams said in his report, mailed after a trip of 325 miles into the dense wilderness of the Nanay region, "contains in its bark a sweet edible resin with the consistency of real sugar. The pale de acote, or 'lard tree,' excretes an oily substance, which, in appearance, taste, consistency and other properties is a close affinity to the lard rendered from animal fats."

Telling of the remarkable number of medicinal plants growing in the Brazilian forests, Mr. Williams wrote that the Indian natives had a wealth

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LEADER IS KILLED

D. N. McKee Dies in Triple Auto Crash, in Which Five Are Injured.

HEAD OF CHURCH IN 1926

York, Me., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—David N. McKee, of Brookline, Mass., a former president of the mother church of Christian Science in Boston, was killed, and his wife and Mrs. Harriet Vincent, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were seriously injured as three automobiles collided here late last night.

Michael Rosenberg, 17 years old, of St. Augustine, Fla., was arrested on a manslaughter charge. Police said Rosenberg, driving on the license of his uncle, Harry Groudy, of Brookline, Mass., struck the car operated by Mrs. Vincent, causing it to collide with another machine driven by Miss Betty Kramer, of Elizabeth, N. J. Miss Kramer and two other girls from Elizabeth were injured slightly. The McKees were in the Vincent machine.

Mr. McKee was president of the mother church of Christian Science during the year 1926. He was an Ohio man and received his degree of A. B. at Wabash College. He was brought up a Presbyterian, but later became member of a Christian Science church in Scranton, Pa. He was a pupil of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy in 1898.

SNOOK MAY GAMBLE LIFE ON OWN STORY

Counsel Contends His Stand Appearance Proves Him Insane at Murder.

DOUBT CALLING EXPERTS

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Counsel for Dr. James H. Snook may rely solely upon the impression created by the former veterinary professor from the witness stand last week to convince the jury that he was insane when he killed his young mistress, Theora K. Hix, in brutal fashion at the New York Central rifle range here last June 12.

Two alienists, Dr. John H. Berry, superintendent of Athens State Hospital, and Dr. G. W. Heffner, of Circleville, have examined Dr. Snook for symptoms of unbalanced mind but John F. Seidel, defense attorney, said it had not been determined whether they will take the stand. If Dr. Berry and Heffner are not called to testify, Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., will have no occasion to use the three alienists who were employed by the State who have expressed opinions that Dr. Snook exhibited no signs of insanity.

Dr. Snook's counsel manifested last week some inclination to leave the trial record as it stands, to support the plea of temporary insanity, with insanity with which the doctor's claim of self-defense had been associated, to save him from the electric chair.

All Three Called Insane.

Dr. Snook has testified that for three years he maintained an illicit relationship with Miss Hix with the knowledge that Marian T. Meyers, former instructor at Ohio State University, was at the same time on similarly intimate terms with her.

"This alone shows the mental condition of these three people," said E. C. Ricketts, defense attorney. "Dr. Snook was insane, Meyers was insane and so was the girl. We believe that no person of sound mind could enter into such an arrangement as existed between these three."

The testimony concerning Meyer's relationship is in the record, but it may remain there Judge Henry L. Scarlett permitted its use for the time being, with instructions that it be linked up only with the insanity plea. Other evidence that the defense contends proves insanity are the silly and erotic love letters which Dr. Snook wrote to his loved sweet-heart during 1928. These letters have been admitted to the trial record at the request of the defense attorneys, though they were first used by the State.

Letters Cited as Proof.

The prosecutor introduced them to show that Dr. Snook was as much responsible as Miss Hix for their illicit affair. But the doctor's attorneys hope to put them to a different advantage.

Their contents of spontaneous poetry and erotic remarks, and such salutations as "Dear Sweetest," "My dear," and "My love," are the special things which the defense attorneys will use to prove the insanity of Dr. Snook.

No 49-year-old man, with a wife and 2-year-old child, would send such stuff as evidence of insanity, if he were in sound mental condition, the doctor's counsel contends.

Protestant Heads Laud Hoover Plan

Decision to Quit Building Cruisers Approved, Paper Asserts.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Christian Herald in its current issue says the elected heads of 15 of the largest Protestant denominations have expressed complete approval of President Hoover's disarmament plans, and particularly his decision to suspend the construction of new cruisers pending a new agreement with Great Britain.

The information, the magazine says, was obtained in a telegraphic referendum, which it conducted among the officials of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and the president of the National Council of Protestant Church Women.

In addition to these denominational heads, said Stanley Hix, editor of the Christian Herald, the referendum includes the support of officials of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and the president of the National Council of Protestant Church Women.

AIRFIELD OFFICIALS AND RACER KILLED

Plane Slumps to Ground on Turn as Three Seek Cockpit Cover.

ON WAY TO RACE EVENTS

Clovis, N. Mex., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A side-slip ending in a crash from a low altitude took the lives of three persons here today while they were engaged in a hunt for a cockpit vent cover, lost by a United States Army racing pilot shortly after he took off from the Clovis airport for Cleveland, Ohio.

The dead:
Thomas E. Scully, 32, manager of the Transcontinental Air Transport field.
Philip Berry, 26, assistant manager of the field.

Lieut. C. L. Stephens, attached to Mitchell Field, Long Island.
The victims apparently were killed instantly when the plane alighted sideways into a dry lake bed and crumpled up. The machine appeared to crash from an altitude of about 100 feet as Lieut. Stephens was putting it into a sharp bank to make a turn. His body was found lying on the wrecked motor, mangled beyond recognition. Scully and Berry, riding in the passenger compartment of the plane, a four-place cabin job, were pinned in their seats.

Intended to Enter Races.

Stephens arrived here last night from Los Angeles, flying a new plane which he intended to enter in the Cleveland air races late this month. Shortly after he took off this morning the vent cover on the cockpit blew off. He turned about and landed at the airport, and with port officials tried to locate the cover aloft, without success.

Stephens with two mechanics then went aloft in his plane to scan the immediate countryside for the cover, but he was again unsuccessful. Landing again, the Army flier took Scully and Berry with him as passengers in a third attempt to find the missing cover. They had proceeded only a short way west of the port in a zigzag course when Stephens banked the ship for a turn, witnessed by a crowd of spectators who were on a sidewalk and fell like a plummet into the lake bed. The machine was demolished.

Scully came to Clovis in March to take charge of the T. A. T. airport. He formerly had been connected with the Department of Commerce airway lighting service at Washington.

Lieut. Stephens was in active Army service. He passed through Clovis en route to Los Angeles a few days ago as a flying companion of Amelia Earhart. Scully is survived by his widow, who lives at the airport. Berry was single. His mother lives in Baltimore.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Lieut. Orville Stephens, one of three men killed in an airplane crash today at Clovis, N. M., was on leave from Mitchell Field, N. Y., and had planned next fall to enter the tactical school at Langley Field, Va. He was 28 years old and unmarried.

He enlisted in the American Aviation Corps during the World War. In 1918 he participated in air reconnaissance during food relief work in New England.

Lieut. Stephens had frequently been in Washington, visiting his cousin, Mr. and Mrs. William Otis, of 2807 Connecticut avenue northwest.

U. S. SPEEDS VIEWS ON FOREIGN LOANS

J. P. Cotton, Acting Leader of State Department,
Sponsors Change.

WORDING IS REVAMPED

(Associated Press.)

Plans of the State Department to change the present policy under which foreign loans are made by American bankers are expected by officials of the department to be made effective next week.

The new policy would eliminate regulations which have been in force since March, 1922. Unnecessary delays when bankers inform the department they have been asked for a loan and inquire if the attitude of the Government is favorable to the application, particularly, are to be done away with.

Under the change, the State Department will submit applications to other Government departments, such as the Commerce and Treasury, for opinions only when there is a belief they might not be wholly favorable. The present policy is to submit all applications to other departments even when the loan is on the face of it an excellent investment.

Wordings is changed.

It is planned to change the method by which the department indicates it has no objections to a loan being made. Previously the department has informed bankers that it has no objections to the placing of the loan, but that this must not be taken to indicate the department approves of the loan. It was found, however, that in marking the loan, the "no objections" indication of the Government was being used as an argument in some cases that the United States approved and supported the issue.

To eliminate this phase, the department hereafter, when it has no objections to a loan, will simply inform a banker that it will "not be necessary for the department to consent" the discovery that this import can be attached to the department's action.

So far the department has voiced objections to applications from countries whose governments had not funded their war debts, but these, so far as the department is concerned, are for the present, have been cared for Loans for armament, monopolies against American interests, and for nonproductive purposes also were nominally held to be objectionable, but this was not a pronounced policy of the department.

Balanced Budgets Factor.

In the interdepartmental discussions on the new policy, some consideration has been given to the disposition of a rule against loans to countries not having balanced budgets and those which have defaulted in previous foreign loans. No decision, however, has been reached on the proposal to exclude these considerations in the future scrutiny of applications.

Joseph P. Cotton, Acting Secretary of State, is the author of the new policy. He was formerly an attorney of New York and as counsel for numerous interests helped frequently with foreign loans, and came in contact with the delays which accompanied applications under the old policy. Immediately upon entering office, he sought the advice of other governmental officials with a view to a revision of the system and adoption of the new plan will be the result of his efforts.

GALLINGER'S PORTALS EASILY CRASHED, REPORTER LEARNS

for I was dreading a grueling by the police.

The officer helped me into the wagon and we drove to the Third Precinct. Several officers came out and looked at me, and all were mystified by my condition.

When the papers were secured, we started on the long drive to Gallinger. During the trip the kind-hearted, elderly policeman held me so I would not fall off the seat. He also talked kindly, saying, "Don't worry, young man. The doctor will fix you up. You've just had a mental lapse of some kind. I don't believe it is serious."

Reception at Hospital.

When we arrived at Gallinger, they took me to the new building. The kindly officer led me into the reception room.

"Doctor," he said, "this young man has lost his memory. He can't remember a thing."

The doctor made me take my face out of my hands and look him in the eye. While he asked me questions such as "What's your name? Where do you live?" and so forth.

He also held up three fingers and said, "How many fingers have I?" I felt of his hand and fingers, but shook my head, saying, "I don't know."

Then he had me gaze at a ring on his finger and asked me what it was. It was a Bayler University graduation ring, and my memory flashed to Waco, Tex., and "Ole Bayler, but I mumbled, "I don't know."

Turning to the officer, the doctor said, "Amnesia."

That was an encouraging statement, for I was trying to forget amnesia and I did not know how I was succeeding. "I will have to send him over to the psychopathic department," the doctor said. "I can't do anything for him here. They will put him to bed. A good night's rest may be what he needs."

I was again loaded into the police wagon, but the driver was unable to get it started, so the doctor drove over in his car.

Psychopathic Ward Reached.

Upon arrival at the psychopathic department my condition was explained to the doctor there. He looked at me and said, "Where did you come from?" I answered, "I don't know."

"Get on the scales," he said, and he weighed and measured me. He announced that I was 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighed 158 pounds. I was glad to know my weight at that time.

For it enabled me to tell the doctor that my ordeal cost me six badly needed pounds.

The doctor then removed my valuables, which consisted of about $5 in currency, some change, a pocket comb, and a hair file.

While he was doing this, a nurse came in and said:

"Doctor, can I put that fat woman upstairs on the floor? She can't lie on her stomach. She keeps rolling off the bed."

"Yes," the doctor replied, "or strap her in bed."

He called the orderly to take care of her.

"Must I do with him, doctor?" the orderly said.

"Put him in a strong room!" the doctor replied. "Put him on the floor anywhere. He is harmless."

Clothes Are Taken Away.

Then the orderly unlocked the barred door and led me into the place where I was to stay three nights and two days.

He took me to the bathroom and a second orderly turned on the water.

I hated the idea of being bathed by them, probably in cold water. But, upon removing my coat and shirt, the first orderly said: "This fellow is clean. Look how clean his clothes are."

He exhibited my new shirt and underclothes, and said, "This must be a nice guy, look at his clothes." True, the second orderly turned off the water.

alcohol and had produced successfully 48,000 proof gallons of grain alcohol. "The manufacture of alcohol in this manner is only limited by the supply of petroleum and coal," Doran said, "as it is apparent that the manufacturing problem has been solved."

At present industrial alcohol is made principally from black strap imported from Cuba, the negligible supply from Louisiana cane and the high price of corn and other grains forcing manufacturers to bring in the nonrenewable Cuban product that a few years ago was dumped into the sea as of no commercial value.

The duty on black strap now in force is about one-sixth of a cent a gallon and opponents of an increase in this rate have argued that the shutting out of the Cuban product would not lead manufacturers back to the use of corn, as higher duty proponents contend, but would turn production to the synthetic process.

Gallinger Head Silent On Expose of Conditions

In beginning a series of special articles revealing the deplorable conditions existing at Gallinger Hospital, The Washington Post yesterday extended to Dr. Edgar Broek, as superintendent of the institution, the freedom of its columns to make any statement in reply.

Dr. Broek expressed his appreciation to The Post for its consideration, but declared that he would make a reply to the published criticism at a later time and in a manner other than through the newspapers.

My clothes were taken away by the first orderly, who returned with a pair of blue denim trousers and a short-sleeved undershirt which tied at the back of the neck and was open down the back.

I mumbled, "What have you done with my clothes?"

"We put them in a locker to keep for you," he said. "Now, these clothes are not so pretty, but they are clean."

Cheered by Orderly.

"Now, don't worry, Bud, I am your friend. I am just going to put you to bed, and the doctors will fix you up in the morning." He shook my hand to assure me friendship.

He led me into a barred room with a bed on the floor. I had to hold my pants up because they were about 6 inches too large for me.

"We don't have a bed for you, Bud," he said. "You'll have to sleep on the floor. But this bed is all right. See how clean the linen is. Now, you lie down and go to sleep."

I lay down on the floor, disinfected, saturated floor was almost stifling. The stench from the filthy, disinfected, saturated floor was almost stifling.

Upstairs, where I was sleeping, crying and screaming, while across the hall from me an insane man was making a noise as though a leg was being torn off.

"Somebody please help me," he wailed. "Oh, Lord, help me."

He apparently was only suffering from an alarming hallucination, for the orderlies paid no attention to him. Some of the orderlies, however, his cry, "Oh, Lord, help me," with a reply, "Help both of us." But they usually shouted, "Shut up."

DEATHS FROM RUM INCREASING, CLAIM

Antiprohibition Association
Issues Statement Giving
Figures for Country.

SEIZURES ALSO MOUNT

(Associated Press.)

A picture of the entire prohibition period, depicting mounting liquor seizures and increases in drunkenness, alcoholic insanity and deaths from alcoholism, is drawn in a pamphlet made public yesterday by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The association contends that its charts and tables of "indexes of intemperance accepted by both wet and dry partisans as valid," show a "marked drop during the war years, which peaked in 1918, 1919 and 1920, and followed by a sharp rise from 1921 to 1924, and a rise since is described as "not so marked but there is as yet no indication of decline."

The illicit liquor industry has steadily increased during the past year of prohibition. "In spite of increased appropriations for enforcement, in spite of enforcement acts in 44 States, and in spite of the growing body of Federal court decisions favorable to extreme enforcement measures."

Increased Seizures Cited.

"In 1920 only 15,416 pieces of distilling apparatus were seized," it contends. "While in 1928, 251,411 pieces were seized. In 1920 only 133,735 gallons of liquor of all kinds were seized; in 1928, 32,474,384 gallons were seized."

The first year of activity of the United States Coast Guard in prohibition enforcement—1924—saw the peak in illicit spirits seized. It pointed out, with an increase of more than 800 per cent over seizures for the previous year.

Records cited show seizures of materials from which whiskey and alcohol are distilled made a "steady increase" of 26,648 gallons of mash being taken in 1928, compared with 8,356,686 gallons in 1923. Mash liquor seizures reached their top in 1926.

"The figures given here do not include seizures by State officials," the pamphlet continues, "for State reports of seizures are not available."

More Still in South.

"The Southern States lead the list, both with respect to seizures of liquor and distilling apparatus," it is asserted. "Some of the Northern and Eastern States rank fairly high with respect to liquor seized, but low with respect to illicit stills. In other words, the States on the Atlantic Coast, particularly those which have large centers of population, and the State of Michigan, which imports large quantities of liquor from Ontario, seem to be fairly well supplied with illicit liquor. On the other hand, the Southern States and some Western States—Nevada and Wyoming—appear to be the favored spots for the illicit manufacture of liquor."

The death rate for the entire country attributable to alcoholism is declared to be "almost up to the pre-war level" with "a steady rise since 1920."

Charting the alcoholic death rate, the association made a sharp drop before prohibition as reported by the United States Census Bureau, a decrease which continued through the first year of prohibition.

War-Shocked Veteran Wanders in Underwear

New York, August 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A crowd of about 200 persons followed John Schimpf, 43, a wounded and shell shocked World War veteran, as he paraded Forty-second street in his underwear to-night, thinking that they were watching the originator of a new style fad. Schimpf walked about the midtown section for about an hour before he was arrested. He was sent to Bellevue for observation.

He told police he had been discharged from Base Hospital 81 in the Bronx in 1926. Police telephoned that institution and learned that Schimpf had escaped at that time, and that a rule prevented his readmission. He said that he was on his way to Walter Reed Hospital, in Washington, for treatment, and had stopped in New York for a few days.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Leaders Find Relief From Heat in Pools

Many of Old Rendezvous However, Are Closed This Season.

"POOR FISH!" has gone out of fashion as a term of commiseration during these hot days. Goldfish with bulbous eyes are having a much better time than their owners. All they do is swim around a crystal globe and nibble angel food. Which is one reason why many of the smart set are imitating their fish and splashing about swimming pools, as often as possible.

Swimming pools and juleps are about the coolest things in town just now. If you except the frosty look on the second footman's face. Many of the private pools, however, are closed this summer, or overgrown with tangled weeds and spider webs. In the past season it was not so, and some persons who have taken memory courses can recall the day when Mrs. John B. Henderson's swimming pool was the mecca of diplomats stranded in the hot city.

Mrs. Henderson's pool is closed now, and the katydid sings where once the elegant calves of foreign envoys paraded up and down. Some calves, of course, were not so elegant—but that is another story, as Mr. Kipling says. Tea used to be served during languid summer afternoons on the lawns of Hillendale, the home of Mrs. Anne Archbold on Reservoir road, where other diplomats and debutantes also enjoyed swimming in the sparkling waters of that estate. Still a third group favored the pool of Col. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien.

Indeed, with the swimming pool of Alexander Kirk's pretentious Georgetown home, now boarded up, those who seek swimming preserves are forced either to try the river or the club and hotel pools. It is true that the Newbold Noyesses still keep their pool open and there are one or two others. Only that is not the glamour of the past summers. Who could tolerate that purple lighting effect, for instance, which Mr. Kirk's pool affected, and which drew the ecstatic comment of Madame Elmer Clyn? Senators, cabinet members, diplomats, all the creme de la creme of official and residential life, gathered there on early summer evenings.

It is a far cry to the time when a President of the United States walked down the lawns of the White House to the Potomac River, and went in for an afternoon plunge, leaving his clothes on the bank. That was President John Quincy Adams, and the sequel to that story is that a certain newspaper woman—perhaps a society editor—named Anne Royal, sat on the President's clothes and interviewed Mr. Adams while he stood up to his neck in muddy water. What a stir such a thing would make nowadays! Imagination pales. But, of course, as the white-whiskered Victorian will tell you, that was in "the good old days."

Special to The Washington Post.
Frederick, Md., Aug. 11.—Frederick N. Zihlman, representative from the Sixth Maryland District, and Lawrence Kitchin, executive secretary of the United Grocers of America, were guests of honor at the annual picnic picnic at Mount Tabor Park, Rocky Ridge, yesterday. Both arrived late in the afternoon and remained several hours. More than 10,000 persons from half a dozen counties in Maryland and several adjoining counties in Pennsylvania attended the event, which continued late at night.
William F. Broening, mayor of Baltimore, was the principal speaker. Others who spoke were David G. McIntosh, president of the Maryland State Association of the United Grocers, and Senator Broening. Mayor Broening, Mrs. Broening and Senator McIntosh arrived in the forenoon and were met by the Rev. Dr. P. R. Helmer, pastor of Reformed church, Thurmond, chairman of the picnic committee, and entered to the stage of the tabernacle, where Mr. Broening was introduced.
After a brief reference to the picnic, he referred to the value of meetings in the open and exchanging views and ideas. He then referred to the value of child life and the force of young people in communities.
Senator McIntosh, the next speaker, briefly referred to the proceedings of the last general assembly and in a general way told of the business routine of representatives. Mr. Cummins spoke of the agricultural industry and briefly reviewed crop conditions in different States.
At the conclusion of the address, the speakers and guests were entertained at a country dinner.
Mr. Zihlman and Mr. Kitchin were referred to Washington. Others invited to make addresses were: Walter Graham, state controller of Maryland; C. Clinton Uhl, chairman of the State Agricultural Society; and E. W. Williams, chief engineer of the State Agricultural Society.
After dinner, Mayor Broening and Representative Zihlman participated in a horseshoe pitching match, witnessed by a large crowd. Mayor Broening won the match. The picnic, one of the largest outdoor events in the country, is held annually in Mount Tabor Park, a community-owned recreational center at Rocky Ridge, equipped with a large tabernacle and other attractions.

CZECH "ATROCITIES" CHARGED AT GENEVA

All intervention of the Czech government in the language, schools, religion and administration (locally) is forbidden in the treaty, which states that the Carpathians should choose their own officials.
The Carpathians insist that the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, which approved the treaty of the Czechs, are morally obligated to see that its provisions are carried out. Furthermore, they declare that appeals to the league have thus far had no result.
After ten years the international treaty guaranteeing the rights of Carpathians is still a scrap of paper, says the petition, which holds that the present procedure of the league for dealing with minority matters is totally inadequate to safeguard "sacred rights."

Not content with submitting printed evidence, the Carpathian document circulated in Geneva contains photographic reproductions of "flagellations" groups of sturdy peasants with their backs scarred by whips, and "wire whips" are shown in one village the Czech gendarmes are charged with having applied the cat o' nine tails to 34 villagers, including one woman and three children. This "celebration" took place on the tenth anniversary of the establishment of the Czechoslovakian republic.
"Confiscation of the farms of the peasants also is charged. Hundreds of thousands of acres have been 'expropriated' for distribution among the people, but nine-tenths of the peasants of Russian extraction who have applied for land have not received an inch, it is contended. Czech officials alone have profited, although more than 100,000 acres have been sold to 'foreigners'."

The chief complaint of the Carpathians, however, is that their right of worship has been taken from them and that the Czechs, seeing in the Orthodox Church the greatest obstacle to nationalization, have started a systematic persecution against it.

GROWERS ORGANIZE GIANT ASSOCIATION

absorption or change in the existing cooperative growers' associations, the announcement said.

The purpose of the United Growers of America is to strengthen such local organizations by obtaining for them a more complete marketing service, adequate credits and other advantages not now accessible.
Local Functions to Continue.
The organizations becoming associated with the United Growers of America will continue to function in their respective local fields.
The announcement said a large number of cooperative associations, both national and local in character, have pledged their tonnage and financial support in the organization of the United Growers and that pledges already received provide for many thousands of carloads of fruits and vegetables for shipment to the domestic and foreign trade.
It was stated there need be no fear of any so-called food trust in the formation and operation of the United Growers, as the organization is formed in compliance with the agricultural marketing act and the Capper-Volstead cooperative marketing act.

BAY STATE INDIANS HONOR KING PHILIP

Wampanoags and Narragansetts Recall Glories of Early Days.

MARATHON IS FEATURED

Mashpee, Mass., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Survivors of the Wampanoag Tribe began today a powwow in this little Cape Cod Indian town in observance of the anniversary of the death of King Philip, famous Indian leader, who died on August 12, 1676. White and red moccasins mingled today over ground first built upon by the Indians centuries ago.
Representative Charles I. Offord, of Barnstable, spoke from the pulpit of the little Indian church, which dates from 1684, after the Rev. Ousa Makin, Indian preacher, had addressed a throng of Wampanoags, their relatives from all over the State, and a delegation of Narragansetts from Rhode Island. All were dressed in traditional costume.
A marathon reminiscent of the days when runners raced miles through the forest to bring to King Philip news of his war with the Puritan settlers of Massachusetts, and a baseball game for the contemporary American youth will feature tomorrow's program.
Among those taking part in the 10-mile run will be Squanto Wild Horse and Chief Stanton, of the Narragansetts. A basketball game for the contemporary American youth will feature tomorrow's program.
Prominent in today's exercises was Medicine Man Eben Quappah, who traveled with the late William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody, and is reputed to be the cleverest Indian basketball player in the East. Others in charge of the celebration were Chiefs Red Shell, Little Bear (son of a former State representative), and High Eagle.

Home-Owned Drug Chain Is Started in Petersburg

Special to The Washington Post.
Petersburg, Va., Aug. 11.—A home-owned chain of drug stores has been organized in Petersburg composed of eight of the leading stores in the city. In forming the combine, the operators of the stores have pledged themselves to deposit their money in local banks, buy from local jobbers whenever practicable and to support as far as possible Petersburg institutions. All of the stores are owned entirely by Petersburg men who are well known to the community. In making purchases so that prices may be materially reduced, the stores will not in any way sacrifice the high standards of quality upon which they have built their business, it is said.

Manufacturing Plant At Danville to Be Sold

Special to The Washington Post.
Danville, Va., Aug. 11.—The plant of the Morrocco Manufacturing Co., which for twenty years made overalls, is to be sold at public auction August 27 at the direction of the stockholders.
The plant has been idle for some time and all the machinery, including a second degree murder complaint, was sold for $25,000. The plant was sold for $25,000. The plant was sold for $25,000.

VIRGINIA WEDDINGS.

Special to The Washington Post.
Heathsville, Va., Aug. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. John F. Pagan, of Chevy Chase, Md., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Edna Scott, to Daniel B. Parker, on August 3, at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Washington. Mr. Parker is the son of the late James Daniel Parker, formerly of Templeman Roads, and Mrs. Charles A. Edwards, of Washington. After some time at Virginia Beach, the bride and bridegroom will make their home in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Sutton, of Stevensville, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Manohs Rodman, to Thomas C. Holland, of Frankfort, Ky. The wedding will take place in September.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 11.—Charles Gordon Moss, of this city, and Miss Laura Anderson, of Farmville, were married in Farmville Wednesday, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. C. F. Rankin, pastor of the Farmville Presbyterian Church.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 11.—William H. Brown, of Washington, and Miss Pauline Jean Owens, of Hyattsville, Md., were married yesterday at the rectory of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in this city by the Rev. E. P. Kilgallen, pastor. They were attended by Frank J. Brown and Miss Mary Louise Brown, brother and sister of the bridegroom.

After spending a few days with the bridegroom's father, Joel T. Brown, of Petersburg, the young couple will make their home in Washington.

Paul Welons Bray, of Petersburg and Newport News, and Miss Louise Rebecca Blahop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Brown, of Farmville, were married yesterday in the parsonage of Wesley M. E. Church, of the pastor, the Rev. W. B. Jett, officiating. Their return from a wedding tour the couple will live at Newport News.

Horse Dies of Snakebite.
Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Aug. 11 (Special).—An snakebite, believed to have been from a rattlesnake, killed a horse belonging to Lawrence Bett here. Horses are rarely killed by reptile poison, residents here say.

PANTAGES AND WIFE PLAN COURT FIGHTS

Magnate Faces Charges of Girl and Spouse Count of Manslaughter.

LONG TERMS POSSIBLE

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Alexander T. Pantages, 54, multimillionaire head of a vaudeville circuit, and Mrs. Lois Pantages, his wife, today prepared to combat charges conviction of which would carry long term prison sentences.

Pantages will appear Wednesday for preliminary hearing upon a statutory count and a charge of attacking a young girl by force, while Mrs. Pantages will go to trial on September 2 on a second degree murder complaint.

Eunice Pringle, 16-year-old dancer and daughter of Dr. Lewis Pringle, suburban physician, made the accusations upon which the theater magnate is held under $25,000 bond. She charged he assaulted her in his private office when she attempted to get him to reinstate her dancing act upon his vaudeville stages. Dr. Pringle, who is a prominent physician, was charged with the murder of a woman, which he denied.

Pantages was questioned by Fritz, and it was reported he talked freely. However, he refused to talk publicly about the affair after flatly denying the girl's charges upon his arrest Friday night.

The showman said the allegations were framed against him. He spent Friday night in jail following his arrest.

Court attaches said conviction of Pantages on both charges might mean virtual life imprisonment, since they carry a one-year minimum and maximums of 10 or 20 years. Should such sentence be ordered to run consecutively, they pointed out, release could not be granted until approximately half of each maximum will have been served.

Maryland Guard Planes Fly to West Virginia

Special to The Washington Post.
Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 11.—Seven army airplanes of the Maryland National Guard unit flew from Logan Field, Baltimore, to encamp at Shepherd Landing Field, four miles south of here, today for a two weeks' outing. Maj. W. D. Tipton was in command.

Three of the planes later in the day went to Cumberland, Md., to participate in an airport dedication. Routine flying work will be begun tomorrow with eight planes in use. Daily contact will be kept with Camp Ritchie.

Sudden need for extra help can be met by an ad in the classified columns of The Washington Post.

Man Doomed to Die Avers Gallows Is in Wrong Place

Killer of Coast Guardsman and Secret Service Agent
Seeks Stay Because Law States He Must Be Hanged on Government Land.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.S.).—With but one week remaining before the time set for him to mount the gallows and pay with his life for the murder of two coast guardsmen and a secret service agent on the high seas here two years ago, James Horace Alderman may yet obtain a stay of execution, although the Supreme Court of the United States and President Hoover previously have declined to intervene.
The 50-year-old convict, once known as the "Gulf Stream Pirate," and now reputed to be a prison evangelist, insists, through his attorney, that the hanging will be illegal as planned, and an appeal to the U. S. Circuit Court at New Orleans from failure of the District Court here to give out no information as to the preparations of the actual hanging, asserting the press had shown a "morbid interest" in such matters.
Alderman and members of his family have asserted publicly that they favor a public hanging and the county adding he wished to have newspaper men and his friends there.
"It's my hanging; I should be accorded that privilege," Alderman said. But the judge remained adamant.
The judge, who originally sentenced Alderman to death, and ten of the twelve jurors who returned the verdict later signed letters urging commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment, but without appeal.

Hudson Bay Air Search Fails to Locate Fliers

Toronto, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Search by an airplane along the northwest shore of Hudson Bay today had revealed no trace of C. A. "Duke" Schiller, Canadian flyer, and two companions, who left Baker Lake two weeks ago on a prospecting flight. Plans were made today to dispatch a second plane tomorrow from Sioux Lookout to join in the search.

VIRGINIA OBITUARY.

Heathsville, Aug. 11 (Special).—John Phillips, of Richmond County, was found dead in his boat near Ware's wharf on the Rappahannock Saturday at noon. He was at Ware's wharf about 10 o'clock that day, seemingly in good health. He left Ware's shortly after that hour to go fishing. His body was discovered by H. H. Ware. Funeral services were held at Jerusalem Baptist Church Sunday by the Rev. George M. Connelley, assisted by the Rev. L. B. Underwood and the Rev. George T. Brooks. Interment was in the church cemetery. Phillips is survived by two sons, Lee Phillips, of near Warrenton, and Stonewall Phillips, of Fort Worth, Tex.

Harry Tignor died Saturday. Burial will be in Orange County today.

Typhoid Kills Two at Danville.
Danville, Va., Aug. 11 (Special).—Danville has had two typhoid fever deaths this week, but both were patients brought in from the county hospitals. Two more are now being treated and there are two paratyphoid fever cases here.

Maryland Bakers Hold Picnic.
Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 11 (Special).—The Progressive Bakers Association, including Hagerstown, Md., Martinsburg, Winchester, Va.; Cumberland and Frederick, Md., held its annual picnic at a local park yesterday. Contests under the supervision of J. A. John, of Philadelphia, furnished the entertainment. Approximately 100 persons attended.

WAR HERO FACES LOSS OF HIS FARM

Sergt. Samuel Woodfill Gets
$246 a Month, but Debts
Threaten Home.

PERSHING Praised Him

Covington, Ky., Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.S.).—Sergeant Woodfill, one of the outstanding characters of the American Expeditionary Force during the World War, is staging an up-battle with his postwar adjustment problems and is threatened with the loss of his little farm, according to information obtained from his friends today.
Woodfill is best known to the American public as Sgt. Woodfill, although he has for some time, after being promoted to the rank of lieutenant, and later became a captain in France. Gen. Pershing called him one of the most distinguished soldiers in the United States Army during the war.

Single-Handed Exploit.

In October, 1918, single-handed, he captured three German machine gun emplacements and killed nineteen Germans. This and other feats of physical bravery resulted in his being awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Croix de Guerre with palm, and several other military decorations. After the war he served as a sergeant in the 1st Cavalry Division, which he retired and returned to a little farm he had purchased near California, Ky. The farm was encumbered with mortgages which are falling due.

On one previous occasion after the war, a theatrical and vaudeville booking agency came to Woodfill's rescue when his home was involved with mortgages and pressed him with the paid-up title to the home. Unless some other interests take up Woodfill's new problem he will face the loss of his farm, upon which he has labored as only a soldier with few ideas about civil life could last. The farm comprises 20 acres and is in Campbell County.

Has Job and Pension.

But the former soldier is not depending on outside aid and is doing all he can to help himself. Several months ago he took a job as watchman in the Newport Rolling Mills. He makes about $110 a month at this job. This sum, plus the $126 a month he draws from the Government, is sufficient to maintain him and his wife, but will not allow him to meet the mortgage. Against his will his friends are trying to interest public-spirited citizens in his plight.

Born at Bryantville, Ind., in 1883, Woodfill enlisted in the United States Army when he was 18 and served in the Philippines and Alaska.

His name has been linked with that of Sgt. Alvin York and other soldiers who distinguished themselves during the fighting in France.

Parachute Jumper to Broadcast

Description of Fall to Be Made at Roosevelt Field, Transmitter on Man's Chest; Favorite Operas on Air Today.

Experiments at Roosevelt Field to broadcast from a falling parachute will reach their climax this afternoon when a network of the National Broadcasting Co., headed by WJZ, is linked to a portable short wave transmitter strapped to the chest of H. G. "Buddy" Bushmeyer as he leaps from a plane at 3,000 feet. The jumper will use the same broadcast apparatus that proved its practicability in the broadcast of the Graf Zeppelin's arrival at Lakehurst. The tiny transmitter weighs but 24 pounds and is carried in a special harness with a chin-stap microphone.

The broadcast, believed to be the first of its kind ever attempted, will go on the air at 3:30 o'clock, weather permitting. Captain J. Nelson Kelly, chief pilot at Roosevelt Field, will be at the controls of the plane taking Bushmeyer aloft. John B. Daniel will open the broadcast from the ground, describing the ascent and giving the signal for the chute man's leap.

An hour of varied music, including the Buick Trio and including an orchestra under the direction of Frank Black, will be broadcast in the Family Party at 7:30 o'clock from WJZ. The trio is composed of Frank Luter, Jack Parker and Phil Dewey. A song written by Thurlow Lieurance on a favorite Indian theme, "By the Waters of Minnesota," will be featured as a tenor solo by Franklin Baur in the program to be broadcast by the Voice of Firestone at 7 o'clock. "Vaughn de Leath," the original radio girl, sings Homer's "Banyo Song" and "Bye and Bye, Sweetheart," while instrumental highlights by the symphony orchestra under the direction of Hugo Mariani include "The Gondoliers" from "A Day in Venice" by Eliebert Nevin.

"Tales from the Vienna Woods" by Johann Strauss, the waltz king, will be featured by the A. & P. Gypsies under the baton of Harry Ford in the program to be broadcast at 7:30 o'clock. Further instrumental highlights include "Caprice Viennoise" by Fritz Kreisler in an arrangement for strings and wood-winds and a salon arrangement of Hubbell's "Poor Butterfly." Floyd Gibbons will speak at 9:30 o'clock in the series "Hunting Hounds Around the World." Fredrich von Flotow's overture to "Martha" makes a good opening for the hour of slumber music, while a selection from a light German opera, "The Spring Maid," offers a pleasant contrast in subject and in music.

Other selections include "Gondoliers," "Zichrer," "Whims," "Schumann," "Schirking Dew," Rubinstein, and "Melodie," Tchaikovsky. The overture from Bellini's "Norma" is the opening number of the grand opera concert from WJZ at 7 o'clock. Selections from "The Barber of Seville," "The Light of the Moon," "Il Trovatore," sung by the quartet, "Zug der Frauen," from "Lohengrin," and the "Rhine Daughters Chorus" will also be presented. There will be a United States Navy Band concert, under the direction of Lieut. Charles Bentley, at 8:30 o'clock. Johnny Slaughter and his Chrysler Orchestra are featured at 8:15 o'clock.

Col. Almonzo Gray, president of the D. C. Society, Sons of the American Revolution, will speak on the subject of "Constructive Patriotism" from WJZ, at 9 o'clock. The novel request hour, featured for the first time last Monday, will be continued, under the direction of Q. W. Grist, Lennie Blush, tenor; Shenandoah, baritone; George Reeder, guitar specialist; and Herman Rado, black-face comedian, and many others.

"The Importance of Aviation and the Radio in a General Rule, when Defense" will be discussed by Manton M. Wyvill, from WOL, at 8:20 o'clock. This talk is given under auspices of the National Patriotic Council. Other features include Hildegard M. Johnson, contralto, and David Martin, baritone.

Quaker City Orchestra To Be Heard

Philadelphia Symphony Signs Philco Contract for Three Broadcasts; Stokowski Said to Be Enthusiastic on Radio.

The Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, after several years of refusals, will go on the air in a series of three broadcasts, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, on October 6, November 3 and December 8. The contract was made between the Philadelphia Orchestra Association and the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co., sponsors of Philco radio. The broadcasts will cover the entire network of the National Broadcasting Co., headed by WJZ and including WRC, on October 6, November 3 and December 8. The contract was made between the Philadelphia Orchestra Association and the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co., sponsors of Philco radio. The broadcasts will cover the entire network of the National Broadcasting Co., headed by WJZ and including WRC, on October 6, November 3 and December 8.

Stokowski, himself always interested in broadcasting because of the enormous audiences it reaches, is said to be most enthusiastic about the programs planned. The program, which will be given under the direction of Stokowski, will be heard in the leading cities of the East where the Philadelphia Orchestra is heard each season, will be chosen entirely by Stokowski. At each broadcast a short introductory talk will be made by Edward Davis, president of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and it is hoped that Stokowski also will make a broadcast.

Entrance of this musical organization, praised by the musical critics of the Nation as outstanding in its field, into radio broadcasting is hailed by radio men as one of the greatest triumphs of the day for music. The history of the orchestra, tracing its history back to January, 1777, when a concert of music was held "at the Assembly Room in Lodge Alley," through the days of the "City Concerts" in 1784, the Philadelphia Music Festival in 1883, and the Philadelphia Symphony Society—1883 to 1900—the present Philadelphia Orchestra has drawn its talent from the best musicians in the world and has enjoyed the praise of radio critics in practically every newspaper in the country. Its activities have been sponsored by leading citizens of Philadelphia and each year the demand for tickets to its concerts has increased even its staunchest supporters.

Leopold Stokowski, conductor, is the third to direct the orchestra since it was founded in 1900, Fritz Scheel being its conductor from 1900 to 1908, and Carl Pohlig from 1907 to 1912. The personality of Stokowski, born of a Polish father and an Irish mother, and educated in Queen's College, Oxford, has had a large part to do with the almost sensational success of the orchestra in recent years. His first musical work in the United States was that of organist and choirmaster at St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City. In that position he had the almost sensational success of the orchestra in recent years. Official of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. state that engagement of the Philadelphia Orchestra, under direction of Stokowski, had nothing to do with continuation of the regular Philco Hour, which will be heard as usual, every Friday evening.

A matching scarf of white, with red and blue design, complete this.

Such awfully smart bags for fall! You can make your own fall bag just as easily as a smart couturiere can tell some clever-fingered little midwife how to make her—but, of course, you have to send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of the Dore department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you how to make them!

For Clever Fingers. Try it out on a friend. Just sit down and tell her how you make that favorite thing you know how to make. Then write it out, as practiced, for the clever finger contest. We have so-o-o much fun re-creating our style that we just had to sit down and write all about it! Wouldn't you like to know all the clever things we did? You can, only send a letter marked "Personal" and inclose in this a stamped, self-addressed envelope. This is some-thing special, you know, and has nothing to do with the "Post."

THE DOUBLE

By EDGAR WALLACE

"I shall want you for the murder of Lordy Brown," said Dick, and the man smiled.

"No human eye ever saw me kill Lordy or any other kind of Brown," he said. "The fellow was a burglar in my house, he was armed. I had every justification for killing him, even supposing I shot him. I am going to suggest that you have no evidence that I killed Brown. I am also going to suggest that your friend Mr. Henry Devillers and his daughter were also in the house that night and might be as guilty as I. I am sufficiently well acquainted with the law, Inspector Staines, to know that you haven't got sufficient evidence to hang a cat."

"Dick knew this equally well. 'I salute you as my benefactor!' 'Derrick' flashed a grin in Dick's direction. 'That shot of yours did me a marvellous service. I note that you are a little baffled by my statement, but you will understand later. Have you any other charge to lay against me? Bomb throwing—that you can not prove. I simply state that I was not the culprit.'"

"There is one other little matter, Mr. Herman Lavinski," said Dick quietly, "and that is the Slough murder—a cashier shot in cold blood and his money stolen. There was a thumbprint on that pistol. A week after the killing you sailed for South Africa in the name of Cleave."

"Again that crooked smile. 'Where is the proof against me there?' 'The proof is easily supplied—a print of your thumb will be quite sufficient evidence to convict you.' The man was still smiling, and then slowly he unwrapped the bloody bandage from his hand. 'A lucky shot for me,' he said, and Dick looked and winced. 'His chance bullet had removed all proof.'"

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Nobody has ever described the scene which followed the real Walter Derrick's discovery that his father had married again. The quarrel was a bitter one, there was money behind it, for Walter was extravagant. This extravagance had a curious cause. He had the same experimental mind as his father, but his pet experiments cost money, since they were devoted to the study of metallurgy and particularly to gold recovery. He left his father's house never to see him again and sailed for South Africa in the average. A year's wandering brought him to the Tanganyika area and to the most extraordinary adventure.

For eighteen months he prospected, living summer and winter in a tent, scraping enough from the ground to pay his "boys" and replace the horses that died like flies. And then chance brought him into the company of a wanderer who had sought this thinly populated region for quite another reason.

"Joe Cleave," this man called himself, and he made an agreeable companion. He was at first taciturn, a little nervous, and Walter Derrick had the uncomfortable impression, for no particular reason, that he was a fugitive from justice, but in his wanderings through northern Rhodesia he had met several men into whose antecedents it was undesirable to pry. Cleave was down on his luck and once hinted that the Cape Town police wanted him, probably for the robbery of silver for which Minna had been held responsible. This was one of the peculiarities of the man: it seemed that time and time again he escaped the process of justice by the simple method of leading suspicion to innocent men. He was a murderer, a thief, a holdup man, and above all, a deadly gun fighter. He knew something about gold digging, and apparently had been in Johannesburg for a period, and once spoke vaguely of the platinum mines in the Caucasus. Derrick discovered that he had a knowledge of several languages, but he did not allow his suspicions to interfere with the amity of his daily intercourse with him. The two men came upon a patch of alluvial ground which promised to make them rich. Three months later led to a disillusionment. The gold which had been plentiful in the first washings petered out to nothing, and they were thinking of breaking up their camp and going their separate ways when Walter, ranging the veldt in search of food, was attacked by an old lion. He succeeded in driving the animal off, but not until he had been badly mauled in the calf, an injury which led to a permanent limp, a peculiar coincidence since his father was similarly afflicted. It was true that Lordy Brown had come to his aid and carried him back to camp. It was also true that Lordy had disappeared after three or four days, taking with him a small bag of gold that the two men had accumulated with much labor. Derrick became seriously ill from his wound, and deliriously it is probable that during this period of time he divulged his identity and told the interested criminal who was his companion the story of his father. It was certain that, while he was ill, letters to Derrick and his way into the camp, and one was undoubtedly from the old man. He had almost lost his sight, could scarcely hear, and, feeling the end of death upon him, sought a reconciliation with his only son. That this letter was real, Cleave admits, no doubt. It was while he was waiting for his companion to die that his scheme took shape.

He left the camp one night, believing his friend to be in extremis, and carrying with him as much of Derrick's goods as he could travel with. He had a long tramp before him, and he needed money not only to get to the coast but to make some sort of appearance in England. The ground had to be reconnoitered. He had to discover something about the old man, and mostly he had to be sure that, though Walter had babbled to him that he had no friends, this was substantially correct. In the dilemma he reached the outskirts of a mining camp and found a prospector lying drunk by the side of the road. He took the body in his arms, and Cleave searched his pockets and was well rewarded, for the man had recently sold a number of claims to a Tanganyika syndicate. He was making his get-away when the drunkard became dimly aware of what had happened. Derrick's intuition Cleave had that his man was alive and alert was a pistol bullet that zipped past his head. He shot back, dropping the man in his tracks. He did not realize that he was as near the little township as he was and that there were scores of people within earshot. He had hardly reached the cover of a wood before he was under heavy fire. He ran through the wood with his pursuers on his heels and flew in the only direction of which he was perfectly sure, toward the camp where he had left his dying friend.

With the fleetest of his pursuers not a hundred yards away, he came panting into the tent and found Walter Derrick sitting up on the side of his bed fully dressed. Derrick had no recollection of what happened. When he became conscious he was lying in the prison hospital on a charge of murder and robbery. A pistol was in his hand when the pursuers came up, there were two exploded shells, there was the body that had been taken from the murdered man lying on the bed. Nobody had seen the face of the murderer.

Half dazed, Walter Derrick found himself in a hot, stuffy court listening to a death sentence. He had been charged in the name of Cleave, a name that he accepted. He himself half believed that in his delirium he had been guilty of a crime and wished to save his father's name from this ignominy.

It was in the second year of his imprisonment (the death sentence was commuted) that he began to piece together the fragments of recollection. He learned, too, why he was called Cleave. On being asked his name on his arrest, that was the one he gave. Probably he was calling for his lost companion, but the local sheriff seemed quite unaware that he had had a companion with him in the meantime. Cleave had made his way to the coast, leaving behind him a trail of burgled stores. In Cape Town he disappeared. Two years passed in the Central Prison, and then the real Walter Derrick gradually built up the shattered pieces of recollection. He allowed newspapers (he spent a great deal of his time in hospital) and one day he read in a newspaper of his father's death and underneath a photograph was the caption: "Mr. Walter Derrick, who inherits an enormous fortune by the death of his late father."

THE BUNGE FAMILY

Despair and Hope

I CAN'T UNDERSTAND, PEGGY, WHY A PLACE SUPPOSED TO BE ONE OF THE NICEST SUMMER RESORTS IN THIS PART OF THE COUNTRY HAS SUCH DINKY LITTLE ROOMS.

THE WALLS ARE THIN. TOO. ALL NIGHT I LAY AWAKE LISTENING TO SOMEONE IN THAT NEXT ROOM SNORING.

THE FOOD ISN'T ANYTHING EXTRA, EITHER. I CAN STILL TASTE THOSE EGGS I HAD FOR BREAKFAST. THE COFFEE WAS LIKE RAINWATER AND THE TABLECLOTH WAS THE COLOR OF AN OLD SHAWL.

AND MOSTLY ELDERLY MEN HERE TOO. HO HUM!

WELL, PEGGY IT SEEMS JUST SILLY FOR US TO BE SO DISCOURAGED. THE VERY FIRST DAY HERE. I STILL HAVE THE FEELING THAT WE'LL MEET SOME EXTRAORDINARY PERSON AT THIS PLACE.

MY STARS! WHAT A THOUGHT. IMAGINE RIDING ALL DAY AND NIGHT IN A STUPID TRAIN TO SEE A MOVIE!

OH PEGGY! BUNGE I'M JUST AS DISAPPOINTED AS YOU ARE. I HOPE I CAN MARK MY WORD, I DON'T KNOW WHY I KEEP HARPING ON IT BUT EVEN AFTER GETTING HERE AND SEEING THIS PLACE, THE FEELING THAT WE'LL MEET SOMEONE AWAY OUT OF THE ORDINARY IS STILL THERE. YES SIR!

McClung Syndicate, Inc. N. Y.
